Supplemental Issue

I failed to include a very important club report in the original April 2013 issue. This was strictly an oversight and I apologize to the South Salt Lake Lions Club and especially to PDG Albert Woodmansee. The Lions of the state deserve to know of this special project. Accordingly, I am sending out this supplement to all the original emails I have. Enjoy!

Last fall, Woodrow Wilson Elementary Principal Lynda Hart challenged her student body to read 100 Picture Books Everyone Should Know, a list published by The Office of Children's Services for the New York Public Library System. The list featured books that included the work of many famous illustrators.

As the school librarians gathered all of the books on the list, only 62 of the 100 books were housed in the Woodrow Wilson Elementary library. "As if by a miracle, that same week, a few members of the South Salt Lake Lion's Club came to my office and handed me a $400.00 check, telling me that they would like to have me purchase books for the students or the library," says Principal Hart. The school librarians ordered the 38 missing books with the Lion's Club donation. "I am thrilled to report that our collection of 100 picture books is complete," says Principal Hart. "Many, many thanks to our friends of the South Salt Lake Lion's Club!"
